Addressing medications that are ineffective and potentially harmful for patients with alcohol and other substance use disorders

Wednesday, January 29, 2024 @ 12:00-1:00PM PST

Dr. Evan Wood will raise awareness of evidence-based interventions included in a new national guideline for the clinical management of high-risk drinking and alcohol use disorder, highlight the difference between evidence-based and other common non-evidence-based interventions (including routine antidepressant use) that impact care of this population, and help participants understand the applicability of these recommendations to persons with other substance use disorders.
